

CORN CONTRACTS AVAILABLE

Forward Pricing Contracting: Ability to sell and deliver the grain during a specified time period in the future at a guaranteed set price.

Basis Contract: The basis portion of this contract is determined or "fixed" at the time the contract is written in the corresponding delivery month that the grain will be delivered. Pricing of the actual futures portion of the contract can be done on or before delivery. Fee may be associated with this type of contract.

Average Price Contract: Allows seller the ability to deliver grain in a set time period with the advantage of being paid the average price during a predetermined time period. Fee may be associated with this type of contract.

FOB Price Contract: (Freight On Buyer) This contract can be attached to any other contract that we offer. This is where Dakota Ethanol arranges the freight from the pick-up point of the corn to our facility.

Minimum Price Contract: Allows seller to deliver the grain at a set time and specific guaranteed minimum price. Yet, allowing the seller a specific time period to take advantage of the futures market prices if they move higher. A fee may be associated with this type of contract.

Min/Max Price Contract:

Delayed Price Contract: Allows for immediate delivery of grain with the flexibility to price the grain at a later date. There may be service charges until grain is priced depending on the type of delayed price contract available. NOT ALWAYS AVAILABLE CALL PLANT FOR DETAILS**

Premium Plus Offer Contract: You are paid a premium for your corn on the near by contract and in exchange for the premium a firm offer to sell equal amount of bushels for deferred delivery at a pre-established price on a specific strike pricing date. NOT ALWAYS AVAILABLE CALL PLANT FOR DETAILS**

Firm Open Order: Allows seller to set a specific price, quantity and delivery period that they would like for their corn. The offer is filled and a contract made when the market rallies to the set price. There are no fees for this program and also can be set up as a "Call First Open Order".
